2024 Free Edition

This PDF you are reading is 26 years old.

While limited in availabilty (sold thru only one outlet in the US), over the years it has become a "bible" to some folks. All of the information is correct as of the initial printing (June, 1998). But, most of the CDs listed are out of print, or have been upgraded over the past quarter century.

Some have wondered why there was never an updated edition. Part of the reason was the rush of releasing concerts and other material from the vaults. (Bootlegs became product during Nancy's reign.) Adding all that info would have made the book triple in size and unmanageable. I like where it stopped—a month after Frank's passing—frozen in time.

Took one of the remaining books, cut the spine and scanned each page (original files in an unreadable format) so that it can be posted for free. The only part of the book that was changed was blanking out some info on the copyright page. Both outfits listed there (my business and the one that sold the book) are now long gone.

The original book also contained a small bonus booklet "On This Day…" that has been recreated and placed at the end.

I am proud of this little book—the friends made during the production and the afterlife of its publication. And, it's still a useful reference book for all things Sinatra.

Francis Albert Sinatra
Dec 12, 1915 ~ May 14, 1998

Thanks, Frank, for all the great songs!

There will never be another you. . .

I'd like to thank my review teams. In a work of this scope, errors, typos and misinformation seeps in, no matter how hard you try to keep them out!

I consider myself extremely fortunate to have had some of the best-known Sinatra experts pick through the early versions of this book. With the likes of Ed O'Brien, Ken Hutchins, Charles Granata and Joe Berg tackling the raw edition, I don't think I would've gotten to this point.

When the book gelled into what you hold today, I was able to enlist Ric Ross, Will Friedwald and Michael Kraus to go over the pre-press edition. Once the indices were generated, making a single change becomes a nightmare, as the ripple-effect takes over. Thanks for the valuable assistance!

Special thanks to Ric Ross for providing information on the concerts that were recorded for use in Duets, and all the other big things he helped me with.

Michael Kraus did a marvelous job of taking the "galley-proofs" off my secret web site and pinpointing those last-minute corrections.

Charles Granta came thru with answers about the Columbia recordings at the last moment - thanks!

As to the recording information itself, I am indebted to Ed O'Brien for sharing his wealth of knowledge about Sinatra's recordings. Some of the information in this book is revised, based on Ed's inputs and assistance.

Thanks also go out to Bernhard Vogel, my internet buddy who maintained the frantic pace as I neared (and passed) the deadline.

A tip of the hat goes to Doug Gore at the National Academy of Recordings Arts & Sciences for assisting me in tracking down Grammy nomination information from the early 90s.

Thanks go to my friend, Gary Mensching at Signal Graphics for making it possible for me to print more than a handful of books!

And, a big thanks go to Rick Apt, for agreeing to be the exclusive distributor of this first printing of "Songs By Sinatra." It's hard enough writing, designing and printing the book; I didn't want to take on selling, too! Thanks, Rick!

With all of your help, the information contained herein should be the most accurate reference book yet published. It's a tough job, given the amount of recordings of Frank Sinatra's that we are blessed with. No one can do this work in a vacuum, and without the help and support of family and friends, it would have been a real struggle.

Even with all these experts helping, mistakes and errors will appear. I take sole responsibility for the infomation provided, and would appreciate any corrections so that future editions can be made even more accurate.

Preface

What is a songography? And how did it come together?

It's simple, really. A songography is a discography based on song title (as opposed to chronological order).

I wanted to be able to look at Sinatra's recording career from a different perspective. The songs appeared to me to be much more interesting in terms of his contributions to our heritage than when they were recorded. Being able to see, at a glance, all the versions of Night And Day listed in one place gives you a better understanding of his artistic process.

Not only did I want to see the songs listed alphabetically, I wanted to see a list of the composers – with their songs in context, not just a page reference. When I found that song, then I wanted to see how it was released – and with a real album title, not just a catalog number. When I found that album, I wanted to see what else was on the album – and who wrote the liner notes.

I also wanted to know more about the song – when was it written and how was it introduced. If the song was from a Broadway musical – I wanted to know if Sinatra recorded any other songs from that show.

But when I went looking for this type of book, none existed (or existed the way I wanted to see the information!). So, I began to think about how useful it would be if such a book were compiled.

I had built a fairly complete database of Sinatra recordings, primarily using the material presented with the CD issues. This was filled in with information from the various Sinatra discographies that have been published over the years. What was needed was more complete information on the songs themselves.

And that, it turned out, was the hardest part – tracking down the source of the songs! I feel that with the actual recording information, I've achieved 98% accuracy. The same, unfortunately, can't be said for source information. At best, it's around 90%. There are many excellent reference materials available. However, when you compare the information, you can end up with conflicting information. I've tried to use the best from all the sources. If, for example, one source listed a film as issued in 1936 and another said 1937; I'd consult other reference material to ascertain the actual date the film was released. In this case, the first source might have a more complete listing about the film, but got the year wrong (it happens).

Information about some songs was virtually impossible to find. The contest-winning songs on Tommy Dorsey's Fame & Fortune radio show are a perfect example. They were used that one time. Nobody else appears to have recorded them. Therefore, complete information can not be determined.

Many of these songs debuted during the big band era. It was commonplace for each of the three major labels to have their star bands record a new tune. Which came first? In some cases, it wasn't the hit version. Some judgement calls were made based on recording date, but being first in the studio doesn't necessarily mean first in the record stores.

Possibly more of these tunes were actually introduced on the radio before they were recorded. Fred Waring introduced Imagination on the radio, but never made a recording (he made very few recordings of his "hits," preferring his fans to hear them only on the radio).

Thankfully, many of the songs Sinatra recorded during the early years were ones that came from movies or musicals – and thus easier to pin down.

Another source of confusion is the recording dates for some of the V-Disc issues. Where there is conflicting information that I haven't been able to track down, I've added a note to indicate the other possible date(s).

The information was gathered, now all I needed was to pull it together. I don't think I could have had a typesetter try to wade their way through this vast amount of data. Besides, I wasn't sure how I was going to assemble the pieces! And, there were some things about the layout of typical reference books that really irked me. Like wrapping list-type information around a page so that you are constanly flipping that page to try and keep the information together. If there was to be half a column of "white space" just to preseve the "list," so be it. (When I had to wrap columns, they are on facing pages).

Next came the design of the data. Through trial and error, I was able to format the information in an easy to scan style. Titles and dates are bold-faced so you can quickly browse thru the listings.

For the composers and arrangers, I wanted to see the important information in context. I could always go the main body to get the details. So, you get the song and recording date (at a minumum) right there in the index!

Now, after a years' work, I can find all that information in one convenient book.

Here's hoping you find what you want, too.

Here are the details of a body of work that spanned seven decades – the recorded efforts of Francis Albert Sinatra. The emphasis in this work are the songs.

Sinatra brought the songs of Tin Pan Alley, Broadway and Hollywood into the limelight. His interpretations created the term American Popular Standards. Without Sinatra, many of the great songs by Porter, Gershwin, Mercer and others might have faded into the history books. He knew the great songs.

This discography is unique in it's presentation:

- It is alphabetical in order (then by recording date)
- It includes information about the songs (composers, where and when the song first appeared)
- It indicates when the particular recording was actually released
- There are four indices: arrangers & conductors, composers, song source, and featured solists and guests.
- Three appendices list all the first-run singles, albums and CDs, with descriptive notes.

You won't find unreleased recordings or other esoteric information. I leave that to the master discographers: Ed O'Brien and John Ridgway. Alternate takes are indicated.

You won't find private-issue albums or CDs listed here, either. Only Domestic, Commercially Released recordings. I have listed airchecks (recordings from radio broadcasts), movie soundtrack recordings and V-Disc recordings that have been issued by legitimate record companies.

You won't find a history of Sinatra's recording career or any in-depth analysis. This is purely a reference book. I'm assuming that if you're interested in this book, you already know more than the average listener! A list of recommended books is in the Reference, should you want to learn more.

You will find information about when the recording was released. Some sat on shelves for many years, others were released overseas before they were released in America (or never released here, until CDs). I indicate the year that the recording was first issued in general release in the United States. Some purists might argue with this.

A case in point is the Reprise album, Great Songs From Great Britain. This album was first released in 1965, but only in Great Britain. The official release in America was not until 1993 (and then only on CD) and that is the year I've assigned.

Some Capitol tracks were released on a Longines Symphonette mail-order only album, Like Never Before, in 1973. I have indicated on those tracks when they were released to the general public.

I've used the name of the album or CD in the listing. No more memorizing catalog numbers! You'll also note that I've truncated some album titles in the listings. This was done to conserve space. For instance, I've abbreviated the 1964 album: Frank Sinatra Sings Days of Wine And Roses, Moon River and Other Academy Award Winners as simply Academy Award Winners. You should be able to figure it out! Complete single (including V-Discs), album and CD information (with full titles and catalog numbers) are shown in the Appendices.

I've also deviated from the rules of references by not using quotes for song titles. I've set them off, where appropriate, in italic. I feel that this makes it easier to read.

You won't find the two non-musical recordings that are listed in other discographies: "The Summit" (from The Man & His Music LP) and "The Bathtub Scene" (from the movie Les Poupees de Paris). These are not songs, and as such, are not included in this work.

A neglected area of interest is the Sinatra 78 albums issued from the mid 40s to early 50s. Please see the section "The Lost Albums of Frank Sinatra" following this introduction.

I hope that you find this songography informative and becomes a source of discovering new things about the greatest interpreter of American Popular Songs, Frank Sinatra.

Guide to the Information Presented

I've tried to present the information in a highly readable format. You should be able to quickly scan over the information and find what you're looking for. Don't forget the indices and appendices if you're looking for something specific.

Here is the format used for each entry, and an explanation as to what it all means!

Song Information	Song Title Composer(s) [pseudonym] Source (Year) and where/when/by whom first introduced
Recording Information:	Date Type (Where) Length Master #
	Source (if not studio)
Recording Details:	With: who helped
	Arranger: who arranged
	Conductor: who conducted (if other than arranger)
	Features: soloists
Release Information:	Orig Issue: Single release (Label & type) Chart# LP release (Label)
	CD Issues: CD releases

Song Information

The title and composer(s) are as listed with ASCAP or BMI. Some of the original releases had the wrong title or composers. If it was a foreign language song that had new English lyrics, then I've added (EL) to that lyricists name. Occasionally, composers would use a pseudonym when publishing their works. I've used the real name and indicated the other name in brackets. For example:

I Could Have Told You
m-Jimmy Van Heusen [as Arthur Williams]

The third line indicates where the song originally appeared. Musical is usually a Broadway show; but some were "plays with music" and some premiered in London. I've listed by whom (and where) the song was introduced. This information might be different from what you would expect. Many times, the artist who introduced the song did not have the hit. Where there might be some confusion, I've included a brief section, Some Note on Some Songs, where I can discuss them in greater detail. Some of the songs were written specifically for Sinatra.

In Hollywood, dubbing an actors voice with a singer for songs heard in the movie was a common occurance. I've indicated the dub singer in [brackets]. For example, in State Fair, Louanne Hogan sang for Jeanne Crain. The listing would have [Louanne Hogan] after Crain's name.

I've added little icons for songs that have award connections (see Legend, page 4).

Recording Information

The date of the vocal recording session. Note that for some of the later Reprise recordings, the orchestra tracks could have been recorded months prior. There are some Aircheck dates that are not known exactly. You'll also note a range of dates (1/26-2/1) for the Sinatra At The Sands recording. Reprise recorded the whole week, and nobody has been able to pin down on what day what song was recorded.

There are six Types of recording: Studio (and in which city), Live, Aircheck, Movie, V-Disc, and Special. If the recording was other than a studio recording, the next line will show where it was made. Some examples:

Live: Reunion Arena, Dallas
Aircheck: Hotel Astor, NYC
Movie: Film soundtrack of Anchors Aweigh (MGM)
V-Disc: "Songs By Sinatra" (CBS) dress rehearsal

Many V-Discs were taken from radio programs (or the dress rehearsals before broadcast).There were several "special" V-Disc recording sessions. These are noted. See Appendix A - The Singles for a complete list of Sinatra V-Discs.

Special: Two concerts were recorded for use in the Duets project. They can't be categorized as live or studio, so I've used this designation.

The length of the recording is indicated.

Master number refers to a sequence during the recording session.

Recording Details

With: Orchestra (other than the recording studio orchestra), special combos or groups, vocal groups, other singers who took part in the recording are listed. Note that for the big bands, I've shortened the working name by dropping "and his". For example, where it says Tommy Dorsey Orch, you should mentally substitute Tommy Dorsey and his Orchestra.

I've also taken the liberty of adding Sinatra Concert Orch to the live recordings that make up the 80th Live CD. The orchestra that toured with Sinatra didn't have an "official" name. I added this so that the information about these recordings (arrangers, composers, etc.) will be easier to spot.

Arranger: The arranger of the song for that session. May be different from what an album might show.

Conductor: Usually the arranger was the studio orchestra conductor. There were occasions when the arranger was not available, or one arranger conducted another arranger's work at a session. If there is no Conductor entry, then the arranger did the conducting.

Features: Sinatra loves jazz, and some of the greats take solos. Harry "Sweets" Edison, for example, did most of the solos during the Capitol sessions. Where known, they are finally given their proper credit. There are several places where the soloist is not known. I've left the instrument, but placed a "?" next to it. I would appreciate hearing from anyone who might be able to help me fill in these gaps!

There are complete cross-reference indices for the arrangers, conductors, composers & featured artists after the main section.

Release Information

Orig Issue: How the recording was first issued. Singles are listed first. First issue LPs are listed next. A year is shown only when the recording was not released within a few months of the recording date. This is most evident for the RCA and Columbia compilation LPs. If you missed the original 78, you were out of luck for many years!

Some up-front clarifications on singles:

- Victor: All listed releases are 78s
- Columbia: All listed releases are 78s. Some singles were also issued as 45s and as 33⅓ "microgrooves". These are not listed.
- Capitol: All listed releases are 45s. They released singles as both 78s and 45s (with the same catalog number). All The Way was the last Capitol 78.
- Reprise: All Reprise (and Qwest) singles are 45s.
- For the V-Discs, I've listed only the Army series. I've also included Sinatra's commercially released Dorsey and Columbia recordings that were also issued on V-Disc.

For a few Capitol issues, I've indicated the EP that the song first appeared on. These were not released as singles, and a couple never made it onto an album.

Chart position is noted in bold-face.

Some singles were not released until several years after the recording. The year of release is indicated.

See Appendix A - The Singles & V-Discs for a numerical listing of all the singles.

LP Issues: The first full-length album a track was released on is listed. Some Dorsey and Columbia recordings were first issued as a single track on various artist albums. These are NOT indicated. See Appendix B - The Albums for a complete history of Sinatra's long players.

CD Issues: Where you can get them today. Most of the first issue Capitol and Reprise LPs were directly transferred to CD (some with bonus tracks). Some of these recordings were first issued on CD. Some of the CDs listed are now out-of-print.

If the Orig Issue was a CD, under the CD Issues, you'll see "as above" instead of repeating the CD title. This will help a reader spot the previously unreleased issues more quickly.

Listed under CD Issues are all of the CDs that the recording has appeared on, by CD issue date (in-print or not), with the following exceptions:

The early Columbia CD releases: Greatest Hits, The Early Years; Greatest Hits, The Early Years, Vol 2; The Frank Sinatra Story In Music; The Voice: Columbia Years (the 1986 6-LP set); Christmas Dreaming; Hello Young Lovers and Rarities and the early RCA CD releases: All-Time Greatest Hits, Vols 1-4 and Stardust. These were released before the digitally remastered box sets (Columbia Years: 1943-52 and The Song Is You). You should get the later CDs, as the sound is vastly improved! They are listed if this is the only CD where the recording appear.

The single CD cut-downs: *Best Of The Capitol Years (*from *The Capitol Years), Sinatra Reprise: The Very Good Years (*from The Reprise Collection) and *I'll Be Seeing You (*from The Song Is You) are also not listed. The tracks that make up these CDs are noted in the full track listing of their respective CD box sets.

Appendix C - The CDs list all of the CDs mentioned. In the case of duplicating vinyl albums, the track information is not repeated. All new CDs, however, have descriptive notes and track listings.

New Information

Throughout the book, you might spot some details that don't "agree" with previously published works on Sinatra. This is the first detailed reference book that has been published since Sinatra's recording career ended in 1993. There are always "new" facts to be discovered about a career that spanned seven decades! New facts will be discovered after this book has been printed. It's research that might never be "finalized!"

Here are some of the more important "new" facts:

- Although the CD issue of the Red Norvo concert in Australia indicates March 31 & April 1, 1959 as the recordings dates, there were actually two shows on March 31. There was no show on April 1.
  The date and venue for the Paris CD is also incorrect. It was held at The Olympia Theatre on June 7, 1962.
- The released version of L. A. Is My Lady is a mix of Sinatra's vocal done on 5/17/84 and the studio track from New York done on 4/13/84.
- Some of the Duets II Sinatra vocals came from concerts in 1993. The shows at San Diego (12/8) and Phoenix (12/10) were recorded specifically for this purpose.
- Some of the discographical information in The Columbia Years is incorrect. These corrections are noted with the song listing.

Legend (Icons)

In the music and movie business, awards are bestowed for the best efforts during the year.

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts & Sciences awards Oscars® to songwriters for music in film.

The National Association of Recording Arts & Sciences award the Grammy® statute in many categories, including songwriting, performing and other "behind the scenes" categories.

The Oscars are easy:

 indicates an Oscar nominated song, indicates an Oscar winning song.

This award goes to the songwriters, and can be found on the line with the movie.

For the Grammy awards, it all depends on where the icon is located.

Song of the Year – is awarded to the songwriter, and will be found on the songwriters line.

Record of the Year – is awarded to the performer, and will be found on the line with the 45 single.

 a Grammy nominated song or performance,

 a Grammy winning song or performance.

You could also see the Grammy icon in the arranger credit line.

Other Grammy awards (for album, for example) will be found in Appendix B-The Albums.

The Grammy categories have a habit of changing over the years. For the winners listed in the main section, please see the Reference section for the actual Grammy category designation.

A complete list of both the Oscar and Grammy information will be found in the Reference section.

A Note About Foreign Issues

We are fast becoming a global community. Although the intention of this work is to limit its scope to domestically-issued material, one can not ignore the rest of the world.

Some of the recordings that are shown in this book as "previously unreleased" were, in fact, released in other countries. England, Holland and Australia have had some of these alternate takes released there first. The point remains, however, that are "previously unreleased" in the US.

Many of the Columbia compilation LPs from the 50s have been reissued in Japan on CD, with improved liner notes and some "bonus" tracks. The Japanese have also reissued many of the Capitol and Reprise albums, with what some regard as much better sonics.

Reprise Italy compiled many of the 70s singles into albums. Reprise England put out an excellent compilation album called "Portrait."

Some of these foreign issues do, indeed, include alternate takes. They are not listed here simply because it would have made the book that much more complex. Perhaps in a future edition, I'll be able to include these issues as well.

Dr John Ridgway's Sinatrafile, Part 2 lists many of these non-US LP issues. Likewise, O'Brien & Sayers' Sinatra: The Man And His Music notes which items were first released outside of the US. Both volumes are highly recommended.

Abbreviations

For the soloists, I've used the following abbreviations for instruments played:

ssx	soprano sax
asx	alto sax
tsx	tenor sax
bsx	baritone sax
tpt	trumpet
clt	clarinet
tbn	trombone
fl	flute
p	piano
b	bass
g	guitar

Other instruments are as noted.

The Lost Albums of Frank Sinatra

When we see the word "album," we think of the 12" vinyl discs that reigned supreme between 1955 and the late 1980s. But, the term "album" dates to the mid-20s, when the record companies began issuing classical music in four and five disc sets. They added artwork to the front cover and some liner notes about the artist or work on the inside.

For popular artists, the record labels began to package collections of these artists' 78s into albums in the mid-40s. Most (but not all) of these "albums" were collections of previously released 78 singles.

As Will Friedwald has documented in his essay "The Complete Columbia Session" (in the Columbia Years: 1943-1952 box set), Sinatra was the first artist to plan an album that would have consistent tempos and instrumentation. This album, The Voice of Frank Sinatra, was issued as a 78 album (C-112) in March, 1946 (a 10" LP version [CL-6001] would be issued in June, 1948). Friedwald also notes that Sing And Dance With Frank Sinatra (released simultaneously as a 78 album [C-197] and a 10" LP [CL-6096] in March, 1950) was the other concept album recorded during his tenure with Columbia.

There were other 78 albums that were issued while Sinatra was recording for Columbia. What about them? Most fans discount them as merely collections of old singles. None of the Columbia 78 sets have been documented as what they really were: albums of new or previously unissued material[†].

It struck me odd that a song like "Embraceable You," long regarded as one of Sinatra's hits from the late 40s did not have a Billboard chart number that would indicate it's supposed hit status.

When I began to look into this further, it appeared that the 78 catalog number 37259 was preceded by three other discs in numerical sequence. These discs, it turns out, belonged to the 78 album Songs By Sinatra (C-124), released in April, 1947. "Embraceable You" never was a single! It had been sold only as part of this 78 album. No wonder there was no Billboard chart number!

But, "Embraceable You" has always been listed in discographies simply by it's 78 catalog number, with no reference to it's actual place in the 78 album. Therefore, continuing the myth that it was a 78 single.

What about the other 78 albums? Christmas Songs By Frank Sinatra (78 album C-167, Oct, 1948): half were new recordings; Frankly Sentimental (78 album C-185, June, 1949): all previously unissued; and Dedicated To You (78 album C-197, March, 1950): all previously unissued.

Here, then, are four Sinatra albums that have been lost over the years. Although their 10" LP counterparts have been listed in previous discographies, the history behind them has not be highlighted.

Songs By Sinatra, Vol 1

(78 album C-124 released 4/47; 10" LP CL-6087 released 1/50)

37256	I Concentrate On You	1/9/47	new
	I'm Sorry I Made You Cry	10/24/46	new
37257	How Deep Is The Ocean	3/10/46	unissued
	That Old Black Magic	3/10/46	unissued
37258	Over The Rainbow	5/1/45	unissued
	All The Things You Are	1/29/45	unissued
37259	Embraceable You	12/19/44	unissued
	She's Funny That Way	12/19/44	unissued

Christmas Songs By Sinatra

(78 album C-167 and 10" LP CL-6019, released simultaneously 10/48)

38256	Silent Night	8/27/45	reissue
	Adeste Fideles	8/8/46	reissue
38257	White Christmas	11/14/44	reissue
	Jingle Bells	8/8/46	reissue
38258	O Little Town Of Bethlehem	12/28/47	new
	It Came Upon A Midnight Clear	12/28/47	new
38259	Have Yourself A Merry Little	7/3/47	new
	Santa Claus Is Comin' To Town	12/28/47	new

The first four were reissues of 78 singles for this package. The last four, although eight months on the shelf (and fit my definition of previously unissued), obviously were held for the next Christmas season.

Frankly Sentimental

(78 album C-185, released 6/49; 10" LP CL-6059, released 7/49)

38742	Laura	10/22/47
	Body And Soul	11/9/47
38473	Spring Is Here	10/31/47
	Fools Rush In	10/31/47	All
38474	One For My Baby	8/11/47	unissued
	Guess I'll Hang My Tears Out To Dry	7/30/46
38475	When You Awake	11/5/47
	It Never Entered My Mind	11/5/47

Dedicated To You

(78 album C-197 and 10" LP CL-6096, released simultaneously 3/50)

38683	The Moon Was Yellow	8/27/45
	The Music Stopped	10/29/47
38684	I Love You	7/30/46
	Strange Music	10/22/47	All
38685	Where Or When	1/29/45	unissued
	None But The Lonely Heart	10/26/47
38686	Always	1/9/47
	Why Was I Born?	12/28/47

These "lost" albums are as important to the development of Sinatra's career as any other album issued in his long career. Finding the original 78 albums is extremely difficult, the 10" counterparts very hard. But no collection would be complete without them.

[†]What do I mean by previously unissued? Most Columbia 78s were issued within a few months of the recording session. If there appears to be a gap of more than six months from the recording date to the issue date, I consider it previously unissued. For whatever reason, they did not come out in the normal cycle time frame. Not only were some of the selections on the 78 albums previously unissued, quite a few of the single 78s can be placed into that category.

For completeness in documenting the 78 albums, here are the details of the other two sets:

The Voice of Frank Sinatra

(78 album C-112, released 3/46; 10" LP CL-6001, released 6/48)

36918	I Don't Know Why (I Just Do)	7/30/45
	You Go To My Head	7/30/45
36919	These Foolish Things	7/30/45
	A Ghost Of A Chance	12/7/45	All
36920	Why Shouldn't I?	12/7/45	new
	Try A Little Tenderness	12/7/45
36921	Paradise	12/7/45
	Someone To Watch Over Me	7/30/45

Sing And Dance With Frank Sinatra

(78 album C-218 and 10" LP CL-6143, released simultaneously 10/50)

38996	Lover	4/14/50	new
	When You're Smiling	4/24/50	new
38997	Continental, The	4/24/50	new
	It's Only A Paper Moon	4/24/50	new
38998	Should I?	4/14/50	new
	My Blue Heaven	4/24/50	reissue
38999	It All Depends On You	7/10/49	reissue
	You Do Something To Me	4/14/50	new

Note: My Blue Heaven was originally issued as 78 #38892 (summer 50) and It All Depends on Me #38550 (fall 49).

In this songography, I have reinstated these lost albums to their rightful status. For the original issue, I list the 78 album and the catalog number of the individual 78 in brackets, clearly indicating that they were part of that 78 album.

Some Notes on Some Songs

In order to conserve space, only a brief history of each song is given in the main section. However, some songs have been misidentified or their "stories" mistold over the years. What follows is a closer look at a few selected songs:

Desafinado (Off-Key)
Music by Antonio Carlos Jobim
Words by Newton Mendonça (Portuguese)
English words by Gene Lees

There are two "American" versions of this classic Jobim song. Jon Hendricks (of Lambert-Hendricks-Ross fame) wrote the first set, and called his version, Slightly Out Of Tune. The version that Sinatra sings had the English translation done by Gene Lees.

Fly Me To The Moon
Music and words by Bart Howard

Originally introduced under the title In Other Words by Felicia Sanders (in 1954), is was breathed new life as Fly Me To The Moon by Mabel Mercer in the early sixties.

Goodnight, Irene
Music and words by Huddie Ledbetter & John Lomax

This "folk" song was written by Ledbelly (Huddie Ledbetter) and first recorded for The Library Of Congress in the 1930s. John Lomax revised the lyrics and The Weavers enjoyed a number one hit with the song in 1950, the year after Ledbelly died.

Everybody's Twistin'
Music by Rube Bloom
Words by Ted Koehler

This pop single, cashing in on the "lastest" dance craze, was based on a song that was cashing in on an earlier "latest" dance craze.

Truckin' was written for the Cotton Club Parade of 1935, and was about one of the dance steps of the Swing Era. With a few modifications, and a snappy Neal Hefti arrangement, it took on a new dance step. Fats Waller & His Rhythm had a minor hit with the original Truckin'.

The House I Live In (That's America To Me)
Music by Earl Robinson
Words by Lewis Allan

This song, so closely associated with Sinatra, was introduced in the revue Let Freedom Ring in 1942. Sinatra's Academy Award winning short-subject film, titled after this song was filmed in 1945. That film also featured Sinatra singing If You Are But A Dream. Paul Robeson had also performed this song effectively during his career.

I Get Along Without You Very Well
Music and words by Hoagy Carmichael
Based on a poem by Jane Thompson

This is the stuff legends are made of! Hoagy discovered a poem, signed J.B., while at Indiana University. It took him years to track down the writer, Jane (Brown) Thompson. The day before the song was to be introduced on the radio by Dick Powell, she died. Sometimes she is given credit, other times it's just listed as by Hoagy Carmichael.

I Won't Dance
Music by Jerome Kern
Words by Oscar Hammerstein II & Dorothy Fields

Officially listed as by Jerome Kern, Oscar Hammerstein II, Dorothy Fields, Otto Harbach and Jimmy McHugh, this song has an interesting history. Here's Stanley Dance's history of the song, as printed in his book, Encyclopedia of the Musical Film, 2nd edition (New York: Oxford University Press, 1988):

> Originally, with a partly different melody, "I Won't Dance" had words by Oscar Hammerstein II when it was introduced in Three Sisters, a 1934 musical staged in London. Miss Fields retained the general idea and the lines, "I won't dance/ Don't ask me," for her version ... that marked her initial collaboration with Jerome Kern. Although neither Otto Harbach nor Jimmy McHugh had a hand in the new lyric, both were officially credited along with Fields and Hammerstein. The reason: Harbach because he had been the lyricist of the stage musical on which the film was based; McHugh because he had heretofore been Miss Fields' regular songwriting partner and this was done as a pacifying gesture.

Hello, Dolly!
Music and word by Jerry Herman

This rousing song, made famous by Louis Armstrong has a checkered past.

In 1948, Mack David wrote a song called "Sunflower," that became the state song of Kansas. It bears a striking resemblance to "Hello, Dolly!" So much so, that David sued Herman for copyright infringement. In the out-of-court settlement, David was awarded a substantial amount of money, but let Herman continue to be listed as author of "Hello, Dolly!"

Body And Soul
Music by Johnny Green
Words by Edward Heyman, Robert Sour & Frank Eyton

Everybody knows this was introduced by Libby Holman in the 1931 revue, Three's A Crowd. However,

Gertrude Lawrence was actually the first to introduce the song, in London, on the radio in 1930. She even recorded it with Jack Hylton's Orchestra while in England.

Lost In The Stars
Music by Kurt Weill
Words by Maxwell Anderson

How can someone record a song from a show that wasn't written yet? That question arises about Lost In The Stars. Sinatra recorded it in July, 1946; yet the show didn't appear until the fall of 1949. It was written in 1945 for an unproduced show, Ulysses Africanus. Later, they decided to make a musical of Cry, The Beloved Country, having Todd Duncan sing it at the close.

Mack The Knife
Music by Kurt Weill
Words by Bertold Brecht (German)
English lyrics by Marc Blitzstein

Original version as Morit'at (1928). First English lyrics by Gifford Cochran & Jerrold Krimsky as The Legend Of Mackie Messer (1933). It is published as The Ballad Of Mack The Knife.

I Write The Songs
Music and words by Bruce Johnston

This song, which Sinatra changed to I Sing The Songs, was first recorded by The Captain & Tennille in early 1975. Daryl Dragon and his wife, Toni Tennille, were played a demo of the song by the composer, Bruce Johnston (a one-time member of The Beach Boys). The recording appeared on their debut album. The next artist to record the song was David Cassidy, whose single of the song reached #11. Producer David Geffen heard the song, and felt it would be perfect for his client, Barry Manilow. The rest is history!

Sammy Cahn's Special Lyrics

Sammy Cahn was a master of creating special lyrics (way before Weird Al Yankovic). He supplied updated or otherwise specially-crafted words to these songs:

Mrs. Robinson
Bells Of Christmas
The Twelve Days Of Christmas
Until The Real Thing Comes Along

Sammy also wrote the words to the special versions of Sinatra songs: the Kennedy campaign version of High Hopes, The Gentleman Is A Champ, Nancy (With The Reagan Face), and The Most Beautiful Man In The World (for the Cary Grant Friars Roast).

Looking Ahead

Is this the definitive work on the recording career of Frank Sinatra? No.

We can look forward to quite a few "new" releases in our crystal ball.

There are unreleased takes still in the tape vaults at Capitol and Reprise. Like the longer version of What Is This Thing Called Love, with a beautiful clarinet solo by Mahlon Clark. Perhaps a CD that shows the artist in his workshop – what went on during a recording session.

There are numerous concert tapes that will be released. Reprise had planned a "live" box set to follow the studio set. The Retirement Concert (6/13/71) and the Carnegie Hall concert (4/8/74) were mastered for that project. Will they finally release them?

Columbia/Legacy has had a set of airchecks in the works for over a year. This will include many items that Sinatra never recorded in the studio, like Lover Come Back To Me and Lullaby Of Broadway.

RCA has many hours of airchecks that could be mastered and released.

When DVD-Audio becomes a reality, Reprise is set to release the Carnegie Hall concert. It is ready to go once the equipment hits the shelves (sometime in 1999).

Or a CD-ROM with newsclips, concert footage and music – a real interactive life story.

How about all the movie soundtrack recordings that were many in the 40s and 50s?

No, we haven't seen the last item of Sinatra's recorded legacy yet.

And that will make new reference books necessary. It'll be an on-going project.

Even though The Voice was stilled this Spring, we will enjoy his creative talents for many years to come. And, if nothing "new" comes out, we still have all this marvelous music to listen to again and again.

Arranger Index

Here's the place to look up the songs by the arrangers (The big five are: Axel Stordahl: 294, Nelson Riddle: 292, Don Costa: 94, Gordon Jenkins: 90, Billy May: 72). It contains the perfunctory information: song title, recording date, who appeared with Sinatra and type of recording. If a song is listed twice, it signifies two distinctly different arrangements.

Note: The arrangements adapted for the small combos are not listed.

Composer Index

Here's the place to look up the songs by the composers. Because of the enormous list of composers and lyricists (over 780) that are involved with Songs By Sinatra, this index contains only the perfunctory information: song title, recording date, who appeared with Sinatra and arranger. Unless otherwise indicated, all recordings are done with a studio orchestra. In parenthesis are noted (A) airchecks, (L) live, and (M) movie soundtrack.

There were several key songwriting "teams," like Sammy Cahn & Jimmy Van Heusen. The co-writer is noted with astericks in their individual section. This was only done for a select few teams.

Source Index

A lot of the songs that Sinatra recorded were introduced in musicals, movies and revues. Although this information is listed in the main section, sometimes it's nice to have that source material listed in one place. This way, you can see if Sinatra recorded anything from the show Annie Get Your Gun (yes, three songs) or the movie Shall We Dance (yes, two songs).

Also listed are the songs introduced by others (like Crosby, Bennett and Etting) listed under their names.

This index contains only the perfunctory information: complete information will be found in the main section.

Soloists & Guests Index

Here's the place to look up the soloists and guest vocalists and groups that Sinatra performed with. Here, you can look up (for example) all the recordings done with Bing Crosby. Small vocal groups (like The Modernaires) and small instrumental groups (like The Tony Mottola Trio) have complete personnel listings. Larger vocal & instrumental groups do not. Harry James & Tommy Dorsey are assumed to have the lead solos (trumpet and trombone, respectively) in the recordings with their orchestras, and as such are not indexed here. For complete details on these recordings, please see the main body.

Appendix A – The Singles & V-Discs

Sinatra's early success came via the singles market – that's the only vehicle that was available in the 40s! There were no albums, and CDs weren't even a dream. The early singles were shellac 10" discs, holding about 3:20 worth of material. When he joined Capitol, 78s were slowly giving way to 45s, the little record with the big hole. The singles market eventually dried up (for almost everyone) in the 80s, as CDs began to dominate the market. He is the one performer to ride the technology waves from heavy shellac to thin aluminum.

Sinatra released seven singles while with Harry James - none made a dent on the popularity charts. Only when they were rereleased during a strike by musicians (Aug '42 thru Dec '44), did they make waves. All Or Nothing At All sold about 8,000 copies on it's initial release; but when reissued during the "Bobby Sox" craze (Oct, 1943), it climbed to No 1.

His recorded output with Tommy Dorsey reached 85 singles. Dorsey gave him room to stretch out, featuring him as a prime vocalist on 66 of those discs. On the other 78s, he shared vocal duties with Connie Haines, The Pied Pipers or Jo Stafford (once with ol' TD himself!). One track was too long for the standard 78, so it was pressed on the larger 12" variety. While with Dorsey, he had Axel Stordahl write four arrangements in a string-dominated setting. Although Dorsey reluctantly let him record these sides, he made sure that Victor released them on their low-budget Bluebird label.

Over 150 singles were released during his tenure with Columbia. It was here that the 78s began to fade, when RCA invented the 45 in the late 40s. All of the singles noted here were released as 78s, with some also on 45 (and fewer still on Columbia's attempt to battle RCA with their 33⅓ singles). Albums began to be formed, as Sinatra wanted to present ideas that couldn't be contained on a single 78. These albums are noted in the article, The Lost Albums Of Frank Sinatra.

Sinatra at Capitol was two musicians: the pop-single star, and the mood-album maker. As Will Friedwald documents in the liner notes to the Complete Capitol Singles Collection, these were two very different worlds. Capitol released singles in both 78 and 45 format, up to and including All The Way.

The Reprise years saw Sinatra using singles (at first) as other artists of the day: using them to promote and help sell albums. Interestingly, when he put together his tribute to Dorsey, he had them release all the tracks as a series of 45s, not unlike the 78s of their day. For a few years after his retirement, he made nothing but singles, and most of these were never compiled into album form in the U.S.

I have attempted to list the singles in their release order (different from recording order), and where known, the "A" side is shown first. To minimize the clutter, only 78s are shown for Victor and Columbia. I have tried to minimize the listing of reissues (except where they made an impact). You'll notice in the Columbia section that many tracks were "held back," seeing light-of-day years after they had been recorded.

V-Discs

Sinatra contributed to the war effort by making V-Discs. Some where made using masters from Victor and Columbia. But, many were specially recorded for the series either from radio broadcasts or at special V-Disc recording sessions.

In this section, Sinatra's standard studio recordings are indicated in normal type, special recordings in bold face and the other artists who appeared on the V-Disc in italic. Details on the special recordings will be found in the main section under the appropriate song title. This list is only of V-Discs that Sinatra performed on.

Appendix B – The Albums

Much as I love CDs, with the wealth of previously unreleased (or hard-to-find) material that they contain, nothing beats a vinyl record. It's easy to hold, easy to read and presents two complete acts of a musical event. For me, there will never be a replacement for the long playing disc.

LPs came to being during Sinatra's recording cycle. He invented the concept album.They are such a part of his musical history, that this appendix lists the first-run albums released by Frank Sinatra. The listings include catalog number, release date and the contents. The major compilations issued by RCA and Columbia are listed, as are all of the Capitol and Reprise albums. Budget reissues (and the slew of Capitol counter-releases to start-up Reprise) are not listed. For a complete list of records featuring Frank Sinatra, please see the Reference Section for information on books that list everything. Also noted are the CD equivalents of these LPs.

Someday, I'd like to reprint the liner notes for each album. For example, the early Reprise records had fold-out covers with long notes that were either truncated for the CD issue, or missing altogether. They are as much a part of Sinatra's recording history as the music, and I'd like to preserve them before they are lost forever.

Information (arrangers, song titles, etc) are shown as they appeared on the original album. Even though occasionally wrong, this is done for historical purposes. The corrected song titles are listed in the main section of this book. Other corrections are indicated in the notes for each album, or footnoted for each track.

RCA Victor Compilation LPs

Albums released by RCA Victor are all compilations, as there were no LPs in the early 1940s. The first album, Fabulous Frankie, was a 10" LP, followed by two sets released in the late 50s, one in '72 (as part of the Vintage series) and the complete works in the 80s. There were, of course, many reissues of the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra that had one or more tracks with a Sinatra vocal. Those are not listed here. One that I will mention in passing is the 1956 set, That Sentimental Gentleman. This was a two-record set of airchecks by the great Dorsey band. There are six tracks that feature Sinatra. They were reissued on the Dorsey/Sinatra Radio Years. But, it's the rest of the album that makes finding a copy so rewarding. Well, Git It, Song Of India, Quiet Please (featuring Buddy Rich) and other examples of why Tommy Dorsey's band was so highly rated.

The Columbia 10" LPs

Not many people realize that Sinatra produced real albums during his career at Columbia. Most think that all of Sinatra's releases were 78s (or thrown together collections). Please see the lead article, The Lost Albums Of Frank Sinatra on page 5, for a look at these early albums. Frank took advantage of the longer format as soon as Peter Goldmark at Columbia invented it in 1948. Since they were only released in the 10" format, they are very hard to find today. With the advent of programmable CD players, however, you can re-create these first concept LPs. (Note: There were other 10" LPs released, but they were collections, and are not detailed here).

Starting with the next compilation (Frank Driggs, producer), Columbia began to take this reissue thing much more seriously, offering extensive notes, recording information and the like. The first album, The Essential Frank Sinatra, was a deluxe package, with notes by George T. Simon (THE historian of The Big Band Era). It was followed by In Hollywood, which contained several previously unreleased cuts.

Isaacs/McEwen Produced Columbia Reissue LPs

The zenith of the Columbia LP reissues, the James Isaacs and Joe McEwen produced series were the last vinyl compilations released by Columbia Records. Each record in the series featured gorgeously hand-tinted covers by Ken Robbins and liner notes by noted music or film critics. The cornerstone of the series, The Voice: The Columbia Years, should be in every fan's collection. Six discs, six themes, six sets of notes keyed to the album's theme and a beautiful twelve page booklet (that contains reproductions of earlier Columbia LPs) highlight this lovingly created presentation. Hunt this gem down and treasure it.

Rarities was (fittingly) the last Sinatra LP released by Columbia (or any label for general release). Columbia was subsequently purchased by Sony, and their Legacy division has made significant progress in putting out all of the Sinatra Columbia material on CD. For details, see Appendix C - The CDs.

Capitol LPs

Recording for Capitol marked a transition for Sinatra – not just in style, but technologically, too. The demise of the shellac 78 (with the rise of the 45) and the development of stereo took place during his tenure with Capitol. In fact, the first three albums were released as 10" (although the third, Wee Small, was also issued concurrently as a 12", so we'll skip that 10"er). This was also the start of the great triumvirate in arranging – Riddle, Jenkins and May. The early years at Capitol were ones of experimenting for different sounds and feelings.

These were the years of the "concept" album. Complete themed albums, with selections picked by Sinatra to make a story – whether about lost love or swinging lovers. There were 16 of these albums issued during The Capitol Years.

With Sinatra releasing new material on own his label, Capitol began to collect the old singles, the left-over album tracks, the movie tracks and lift tracks from the "concept" albums in order to come up with "new"product to compete.

In keeping with our pledge to list only first-run albums, here are the last Capitol albums of note. (Although Tell Her You Love Her has only one "new"song, it's included because it has a great cover and was the first album of reissues).

To battle Sinatra's new label, Capitol repackaged his recordings into every conceivable shape and style. Only a few are worth noting in passing: the attempt at a "songbook" series. Sings Rodgers And Hart (W-1825, 1963), Sings The Select Johnny Mercer (W-1994, 1963), Sings The Select Cole Porter (W-2301, 1966 and The Movie Songs (T-2700, 1967). There are/were CD variations of these collections.

Forever Frank, released in 1966, was a compilation of singles and previously unreleased tracks. This, coming amidst the plethora of cheap two-fers and other repackaging jobs, at least offered something unusual for the consumer. We'll consider this the last general-issue, first-run Capitol album. What a ride!

Reprise LPs

In 1960 Sinatra formed his own record company, Reprise. Pointing to the tower at Capitol Records, Frank said, "Let's make one of those!" When his efforts to buy Verve (the foremost jazz label of its day) failed, he decided that the only way he could control his destiny was to be his own boss. The only drawback to this new venture was getting out of his contract with Capitol. Besides the four albums, he couldn't work with Nelson Riddle. Maybe this was a blessing-in-disguise, as it opened up new horizons and different styles, propelled by new arrangers.

Appendix C – The CDs

The arrival of the Compact Disc has been a real boon to Sinatra collectors. No more searching flea markets for that missing LP or rare 45. No more paying exorbitant prices to collectors to fill in your gaps. And farewell to that scratchy sound from your 20-year old vinyl album.

Because of the inherent storage capability of CDs, we can now enjoy the (almost) complete recorded work of Sinatra, from his first recordings with Harry James to the interesting Duets project. We have material that probably would never have been issued on vinyl (the 285 selections on the Complete Columbia set, for example, would have required about 18 LPs). With multi-disc changers, we can listen to the various recordings that Sinatra made of a particular song over the years, comparing arrangements and style of approach.

Most of the CDs also offer a wealth of supplemental information. Generally excellent liner notes, more recording information, etc. In fact, the book included with the Complete Columbia set (144 pages) could probably be sold separately, it's so well done.

About the only drawback to CDs is their size in relation to cover artwork and liner notes. Regrettably, many of the original liner notes were not restored with the CD version of the album. Sure, some of the early Columbia and Capitol liner notes weren't much more than a fancifully worded PR hype, but they added to the feel of the album, and their place in history.

There are a couple of CDs mentioned in the main body that are not listed here. These are the limited-edition issues of: Silent Night, which appeared on a charity CD put out by Children's Records in 1991 and the newly released "demo" recording of Our Love that Sinatra did with the Frank Mane Orchestra in March, 1939. These fall out of the scope of this book, but were included as "historical footnotes." Likewise, the Rhino CDs from Sinatra's movies are not listed in this section.

What follows is a listing of what Sinatra CDs are available. They are listed in order of issue date, which (for the Capitol and Reprise albums) is different from the album issue sequence. I have not listed the contents of the album-to-CD issues (Capitol and Reprise follow the issued album). I have listed what the bonus tracks are, however.

Note: Every CD marks previously unreleased tracks differently. To simplify things, I've established the following set of notations:

*	Previously unreleased
	Previously unreleased alternate
	Previously unreleased aircheck
§	Track is contained in the "cut-down" package

Please that the information is as noted on the packaging. In some cases this could be in error. The main listing has the corrected information.

With Harry James & His Orchestra

Although All Or Nothing At All is on several Columbia/Legacy CD sets, there is only one CD with the complete recordings of Sinatra's tenure with Harry James. Interestingly, there never was an album devoted to Sinatra's tenure with Harry James! It also includes 4 alternate takes (but the one for It's Funny To Everyone But Me is not really an alternate) and 7 airchecks. Essays by George T. Simon, and Will Friedwald, with reminiscences by Burt Half and Jack Lawrence.

With Tommy Dorsey & His Orchestra

One of the best box sets available is "The Song Is You." The sound restoration is incredible. The set includes a 96 page booklet, with essays by Will Friedwald, William Ruhlmann and John Ridgway. A full discography and photos of records, sheet music and band shots complete this outstanding booklet. It contains all 83 sides FS recorded with TD, 6 alternate takes, the 4 solo sides with Stordahl and 24 aircheck recordings. From those sonically superior masters there have been three single CDs. A new CD has been re-remastered, with even better sound!

The Columbia Years

In 1993, Charles Granata and Didier Deutsch produced the massive Complete Columbia 12 CD box set. They digitally remastered every original master they could find; and in the process, they found three heretofore unknown recordings. All subsequent releases have been based on this landmark work. The box includes a 144-page hardbound book, with essays by Jonathan Schwartz and Will Friedwald (who also contributes a session-by-session in-depth work). As with the BMG set, vintage photos of Sinatra and memorabilia are included. A complete discography and information on every Columbia album (78, EP and LP) are in the appendix. Columbia/Legacy has promised that this set will never be cut from their catalog.

Some Sinatraphiles have complained that this is not a complete set of Columbia recordings, and that they substituted alternate takes for what was the original 78. In preparing the set, the producers decided to strive for the best possible sounding master they could find. Sonics were the most important factor in their choice of recording selected. They also maintain that it is complete, in that every song that Sinatra recorded is represented in the set, whether by the "officially" released take, or a better sounding alternate. There are, the producers note, some mistakes in the discographical information. Some were caused by last-minute changes. All corrections are listed in the main body.

What is important about this set is that it was the first of it's kind. The fact that Columbia/Legacy put so much time and effort into such a quality work that would not yield mega-buck returns shows their understanding of the importance of The Columbia Years and how it ultimately effected popular music.

In 1997, Granata and Deutsch have begun another remastering project, transferring every note of every session onto digital tape. Results of this project will finally set the record straight on which takes have been issued.

The V-Discs

Columbia/Legacy 66135 (2 CD): 9/94

For the first time ever, Sinatra's specialty recordings for the V-Disc program have been gathered, remastered and made available to the general public. Because of the AFM strike, Sinatra's development from band singer to pop star had been only heard on these recordings (and radio broadcasts). The bridge between the Dorsey years and the full-blown solo career is completed.

Prior to Big Blue, Columbia had issued several of the compilation albums on CD. These will disappear from Columbia's catalog very soon. You should really only buy the Legacy editions anyway.

Except where they are the only source of a particular recording, these CDs are not listed in the main body.

Capitol Years

All of Sinatra's major Capitol albums have been transferred to CD, most with bonus tracks. There are two major compilation sets: The Capitol Years and The Complete Capitol Singles. While they have not issued a "complete" set (like Columbia and Reprise), they did gather together the 16 "concept" LPs (and the Tone Poems Of Color album with Sinatra conducting) into a special presentation box called Concepts. Today, it is the only place where you can get Close To You. Sinatra returned to the Capitol family for a three album deal in the early 90s, which yielded the Duets things and a live disc.

Unless otherwise noted, liner notes for every CD (except the soundtracks) are by Capitol-era Sinatra expert, Pete Welding. Welding died in 1995 – his expertise is sorely missed. Most include recording dates (although there are a few errors).

The Capitol Years
Capitol 94777: 12/90
This was issued for Sinatra's 75th birthday and was originally in a limited-edition deluxe tall-form with a cloth jacket. A 36-page booklet has essays by Nancy Sinatra, Pete Kline and Will Friedwald. Nancy contributes notes on the Capitol albums (getting the order of the first two 10" ers mixed–which she to get wrong to this day!) and track-by-track notes by Pete Kline and Ric Ross. Like the Collectors Series CD,several tracks† include session chatter.

They Came To Cordura
High Hopes
All My Tomorrows

After thirty-three years with the Reprise family, Sinatra shocked everyone by signed a three album deal with Capitol in 1993. Two of the albums would be the Duets projects and the third a live album.

The material for Duets was recorded in Hollywood in July and October of 1993. Two concerts that year, Dec 8 (San Diego) and Dec 10 (Phoenix) were also recorded for possible use for Duets.

Duets
Capitol 89611: 11/93
The first "new" Sinatra album since 1984. And, a best seller, to boot! All the "duets" were done electronically, most via digital phone line.

The Lady Is A Tramp (with Luther Vandross)
What Now My Love (with Aretha Franklin)
I've Got A Crush On You (with Barbra Streisand)
Summer Wind (with Julio Iglesias)
Come Rain Or Come Shine (with Gloria Estefan)
(Theme From) New York, New York (with Tony Bennett)
They Can't Take That Away From Me (with Natalie Cole)
You Make Me Feel So Young (with Charles Aznavour)
Guess I'll Hang My Tears Out To Dry/In The Wee Small Hours Of The Morning (with Carly Simon)
I've Got The World On A String (with Liza Minnelli)
Witchcraft (with Anita Baker)
I've Got You Under My Skin (with Bono)
All The Way/One For My Baby (And One More For The Road) (with Kenny G)

Details: Notes by David Wild. Cover painting by LeRoy Neiman.
Notes: CD issued in a cardboard slipcase.
This was also issued in a limited edition vinyl LP, and a "gold" CD.
Best Traditional Male Vocal.

Duets II
Capitol 28103: 10/94
With the success of Duets, here are more bogus pairings.

For Once In My Life (with Gladys Knight & Stevie Wonder)
Come Fly With Me (with Luis Miguel)
Bewitched (with Patti Labelle)
The Best Is Yet To Come (with Jon Secada)
Moonlight In Vermont (with Linda Ronstadt)
Fly Me To The Moon (with Antonio Carlos Jobim)
Luck Be A Lady (with Chrissie Hynde)
A Foggy Day (with Willie Nelson)
Where Or When (with Steve Lawrence & Eydie Gorme)
Embraceable You (with Lena Horne)
Mack The Knife (with Jimmy Buffett)
How Do You Keep The Music Playing?/My Funny Valentine (with Lorrie Morgan)
My Kind Of Town (with Frank Sinatra, Jr.)
The House I Live In (That's America To Me) (with Neil Diamond)

Details: Notes by Bill Zehme. Cover painting by LeRoy Neiman.
Notes: CD issued in a cardboard slipcase.
This was also issued in a limited edition vinyl LP, and a "gold" CD.
Best Traditional Male Vocal.

Sings The Select Rodgers & Hart
Capitol 80323: 4/95
A new, 17-track "songbook" collection, not based on the 1962 album.

Sinatra 80th • Live In Concert

Capitol 99374: 11/95

Some absolutely stunning concert recordings from 1987/88. Kinda misleading, though, as the recording infomation is not listed. Why did they have to include the awful My Way duet?

You Are The Sunshine Of My Life
What Now My Love
My Heart Stood Still
What's New
For Once In My Life
If
In The Still Of The Night
Soliloquy
Maybe This Time
Where Or When
You Will Be My Music
Strangers In The Night
Angel Eyes
New York, New York
My Way (with Luciano Pavarotti)

Details: Notes by Bill Miller. Cover photo by Gary Friedman.

The Complete Capitol Singles Collection

Capitol 38039: 9/96

Almost all the singles that Sinatra recorded (the Crosby items from High Society are the album cuts). Quietly released, but shows the quite different side of Sinatra (pop 45s vs. concept LPs). Many 45 and EP covers and sheet music covers are included, as is a complete discography (a first for any Capitol release). The remastering is outstanding!

Disc 1:

Night And Day (with local orchestra)

Details: Notes by Will Friedwald

Note: Although the CD liner notes gives 3/31/59 and 4/1/59 as the dates of the shows, there were actually two shows on the 31st and none on the 1st. This has been confirmed by Sinatra fans who live in Australia and attended the shows. What is not clear is what show the songs are from (early or late).

Reprise Years

All of Sinatra's major albums have been released on CD (although many of them have been dropped from the WEA catalog). Reprise issued the overblown Complete Reprise Studio Recordings set to celebrate Sinatra's 80th birthday. See my comments when you get there. Not many of the CDs contain bonus tracks, and it doesn't sound like the early reissues were digitally remixed for proper CD sound.

The Complete Reprise Studio Recordings
Reprise 46013 (20 CD): 11/95

To celebrate Sinatra's 80th birthday, Reprise put out this extravaganza. The good news: it does collect into one package 98% of Sinatra's Reprise studio recordings, including many that were only available as 45s and seventeen that were never released. The bad news: the package is overdone, overpriced and unmangeable. The choice of a two color (green and orange) design was poor, the type is too small (especially for those older fans - the ones who could actually afford it) and the cheap leatherette suitcase motif is pretentious (at best). The information presented in the booklet has numerous errors, as well. When you compare the Suitcase (as we have affectionately dubbed it) to Big Blue or the RCA box set, Reprise comes in a very distant third.

Make no mistake: we love the music (well, most of it) — we hate the package. Note: Reprise has scheduled an October, 1998 re-release of these CDs in a new package configuration. It could only be better!

For those of you who do have this package, and would like to "reconstruct" the original albums, please see Appendix D - The Suitcase Conversion Tables.

L. A. Is My Lady

Qwest 25145: 10/97
For the longest time, this was available on CD only in Brazil and Japan. But, it's not quite the original album. The 1986 vocal remake of Mack The Knife is here; not the 1984 version. Why not put both on? And why not some outtakes?

Details: Original liner notes (by Stan Cornyn), personnel and lyrics reprinted from the album.

Please see the note about The Entertainer Of The Century reissue series on page 271 for details on the latest set of CDs.

Entertainer Of The Century Reissue Series

In May, 1998, Capitol and Reprise embarked on a "new," joint reissue series. The theme albums, released under the moniker, Entertainer Of The Century. Here is a caveat emptor.

While these are newly 20-bit remastered editions, reports from the field are mixed. Most feel that the Capitol CDs sound slightly worse this time around. The Reprise CDs get generally excellent marks for the sound quality.

Capitol retained the original artwork and "bonus" cuts. Reprise claims to have "restored" the artwork to be like the original album. The back of the new Ring-A-Ding Ding, however, has astericks and notations on the tracks that weren't arranged by Johnny Mandel. This was not indicated on the original album artwork.

Additionally, the powers-to-be at Reprise have decided to remove the "bonus" cuts that were on their original CD issues. Citing "album integrity" as a reason for deleting them, you, the buyer, are faced with a dilema: the better sounding CDs or the earlier CDs with bonus tracks (which you will have to hunt down, since they've been deleted).

To further confuse the issue, the new release of Sinatra At The Sands does have a bonus track, Billy Byers' arrangement of The Lady Is A Tramp. (This is noted in the main body). And, Street Of Dreams is a different mix, where Sinatra scats in the center section.

The new Capitol reissue of Come Dance With Me contains a major error. Instead of the Billy May arrangement of It All Depends on You, the earlier Nelson Riddle recording was used. The same recording, but with a longer fade-out, appears on Sinatra's Swingin' Session!! and More! (it is not an alternate take).

Here is the planned series (with scheduled release dates). Note that this series, will appearing to cash in on Sinatra's death, was planned in 1997. The fact that the first group hit the stores two weeks after Frank's passing is just plain eerie!

Appendix D – The Suitcase Conversion Tables

Having all the Reprise studio recordings in one box is great. Until you try to figure out how to hear (insert album name here) the way it was originally released. Some LPs, like Watertown and A Man Alone, need to be played in their correctly-sequenced order.

One important piece of information that Reprise forgot to include in the "suitcase" was an album-by-album list with corresponding disc-track information.

This appendix will provide you with the information you need, so you can listen to Sinatra And Swinging Brass just like your old scratchy LP!

On the next few pages, you'll find every album, with a side-by-side listing and the disc and track information you'll need to recreate any album. Warning - recreating some of the albums require a multi-CD changer!

Recreating A Man And His Music is impossible. Most of the tracks were edited, and none of Frank's comments are in the suitcase.

The live albums (Paris, Sands, Main Event) are not listed, as they are not included in the suitcase. Neither are the newer CD-only releases. Also missing are the "bonus" tracks that are on the CD version of the album.

Note that some tracks are slightly different from the original LPs, due to the selection of takes included in the suitcase. For instance, Pocketful Of Miracles is the longer version, originally found on the monaural release of Sinatra's Sinatra.

As a bonus, I've included the second Sinatra-Jobim album, (FS1028 - never released). You can now program your CD player to present, for the first time, the lost album, as Reprise had planned it to be issued.

Errata

With the enormous amount of data included in Songs By Sinatra, some mistakes were bound to appear. Some were typos, some were caused by last-minute changes to the main section that were not corrected in the indices or appendices. Some are new facts, discovered too late for inclusion in the first print run. Feel free to mark up the book, or print this out and include with the book.

Here, then, are the corrections and additions…

Add in main section, and add Presley, Elvis to Soloists & Guests Index:

Love Me Tender/Witchcraft
(Poulton-Presley-Matson/Coleman-Leigh)
(see individual listings)
5/12/60 Live (1:42)
The Hotel Fountainbleau, Miami.
With: Elvis Presley
Arranger: Nelson Riddle
Orig Iss: Elvis Presley: From Nashville To Memphis: Essential '60s Masters (RCA CD 66160) 1993
CD Issues: as above
Note: This is taken from The Frank Sinatra Show (ABC TV) that welcomed Elvis back from the Army. It was broadcast live.

Add to My Way listing in main section, and add Anka, Paul to Soloists & Guests Index:

My Way
12/30/68 Studio (Hollywood) (5:26)
With: Paul Anka
Arranger: Johnny Mandel
Orig Iss: Paul Anka: Body Of Work (Sony CD 69405) 1998
CD Issues: as above
Note: This "duet" is a new recording by Anka (arranged by Mandel) that was mixed with Sinatra's 1968 vocal track. The new recording was done in July, 1998.

I'll Be Around
The recording date listed under Wilder, Alec in the Arranger Index should be: 11/14/43

Anytime (I'll Be There)
Add: Background Vocals: Rhodes, Chalmers & Rhodes.
They should also appear in the Soloists & Guests Index

Swingin' Down The Lane
The trumpet solo is by Conrad Gozzo, not Sweets Edison

How Could You Do A Thing Like That To Me
The instrumental that this was based on, Sultry Serenade, was written in 1947, not 1930

I Begged Her
The Columbia 78 catalog number is: 36774

Mack The Knife
The 10/30/86 recording was first issued on The Reprise Collection (1990)

On This Date Frank Recorded…

A "bonus" booklet!

Check your calendar! It's fun to see what Sinatra recorded on a particular date. April 10 was the busiest date in his recording history.

The songs are listed here in session order (the actual order they were recorded in), not alphabetically. All recordings are studio, unless noted. Note that some of the song titles have been shortened to fit the format. There are a few recordings that don't have clearly defined dates. They are listed with the known month or at the end.
